

National University System K-12 Resources

In response to the challenging time we are facing, National University alongside Sanford Programs has developed countless resources we hope will make a difference in the community.

Online Teaching Resources for Educators

Learn more about teaching strategies to facilitate transitioning from face-to-face instruction to a virtual environment through this K-12 educator website. Visit our Center of Innovation and Learning at <https://www.cilteaching.org/pk-12resources>

Virtual Learning Series for Teachers

In response to many teachers transitioning to Virtual Learning, National University System has responded with the 'High Five' workshop series to address best practices in the transition from traditional classroom instruction to the virtual learning space. Learn from an experienced panel of online educators who will share specific ideas and resources supporting effective online teaching.
